Iron Market Not Improved by Reducing Prices.

New York, June 28 .- According to the Iron Age, in its weekly review of the iron and steel situation, it is idle to at-tempt to disguise the fact that the situ-iron and steel situation, it is idle to attempt to disguise the fact that the situation in the iron trade has been growing worse instead of better. That paper, after thus declaring its views says:

The reductions in price which have thus far been made have not served their purpose in bringing the great body of consumers into the market. They continue to withhold their orders and it will probably take some definite development of a favorable character to induce the placing of any considerable business. Instead of a favorable development we have had for some time a succession of unfavorable influences. Among these the drought in the Northwest is just now exerting a particularly depressing effect. If conditions in that section were as they should be at this season, the great implement manufacturers would undoubtedly have placed orders to cover the material they need in making up implements for next year, while other important consumers having considerable outlets in that direction would have undoubtedly been good buyers of iron and steel.

A meeting of leading iron and steel makers was held in this city on Tuesday and, while the nominal Pittsburg prices of $20 for Bessemer iron and $28 for Bessemer billets were not changed, it is understood that the market is now an open one and that pig iron and steel are both being offered at much lower prices. The plan of having a fixed price on pig iron and steel and then sellling at lower prices is not helping the mar-on pig iron and steel and then selling at lower prices is not helping the mar-ket, but is hurting it. It is realized that prices on pig iron, steel and finished products must get down to a solid basis before business will start up. There is pienty of tonnage in sight and with prices down to where buyers think it safe to take hold, a great deal of business will undoubtedly be placed. But the reductions to a solid basis should be made outledly an as to end the superparathe reductions to a solid basis should be made quickly so as to end the suspense. The fact must not be overhooked that a restriction of production is taking place, with the possibility that in a short time the supply of various kinds of material will be found sharply reduced. It is estimated that at least thirty blast furnaces making foundry iron have been blown out in the past two months. Southern blast furnaces are being banked because of labor troubles and fear is expressed that a satisfactory arrangement can not be made but that quite a number of furnaces will be compelled to shut down to await a settlement. Ohio and Western Pennsylvania furnaces are also being blown sylvania furnaces are also being blown out or banked because of accumula-tions of stocks which can not be moved. The failure to agree on the wage sched ule for the coming year in western rolling mills will certainly cause the closing of a considerable number of establishments of this kind after July 1. The lishments of this kind after July 1. The effect of low prices in plate is seen in the stoppage of a large western plate mill because of inability to meet present market prices without loss.

Reductions in prices to a point that will induce buying, together with restrictions in production, brought about by the causes enumerated, will put a totally different face on the situation.

An important development in the An important development in the metal market has been the sharp advance in the price of pig iron. Two advances have been made during the week aggregating $10 per ton, presenting a marked contrast to the recent course in prices in this commodity. Speiter also manifests an upward tendency.

The local gas fitters' union at once lodged complaint and after investigation a strike was declared, all the other unions of the building trades council going out in sympathy.

Recently negotiations were opened for a settlement and one was made perfectly acceptable to the gasfitters. This fact was communicated to the general body and the strike was declared off.
